

Como Falls

And the rains came, and came.....On August 18 and 19, 2007, The City of Hokah sustained 15.1 inches of rain in a twenty four hour period.

Until seeing it for yourself, it is truly impossible to imagine the devastation this unexpected, powerful act of nature did to the southeastern Minnesota region. The absolutely serene Como Falls Park with its unique waterfall and striking landscaping done totally by volunteers has divided the meandering creek in half and is now matted down with trees and debris.

(Note the before and after pictures below)

After rains and flooding of August 18 & 19, 2007

